

a living wife and at once she accepted the proposition of Lawyer James H. Thompson and married him. They toured Europe and seemed happy, while the troubles of Haman continued in the divorce court, and when the Thompsons returned he brought them into the case by instituting suit for the return of his crossants. There was much feeling and many allegations on each side, but the matter was finally compromised by a return of a portion of the property. In 1897 Mrs. Haman, then Mrs. Thompson, began suit against her husband for a divorce and obtained a decree. In April of that same year she married Mr. Haman and now she is to be the hostess at the occasion of the dinner which will celebrate the anniversary of the suit which led to the happy termination of all their troubles.
